Grain Prices Plunge Down Third Day in Row; Mills Cut Flour Cost

Grain Price in Sharp Break After Declining Several Days

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, Feb 6—The most important thing to understand about the grain market break is it is not a brief sideshow It has been going on for two and one-half weeks Only in the past two days has the retreat deteriorated into a rout.

Most grains reached their highs on Jan 16. In the case of corn and oats, prices that day were at record peaks That was a Friday The following day a slight slump developed

During the next week—the week ended Jan 24—the market eased, but there was no spectacular drop. Wheat fell about 7 cents, corn 5 cents and oats 3 cents for the week

Last week the decline accelerated More important, it was noted that every time the market attempted to rally it ran into increased selling. Prices then slumped again, setting a series of new lows. Corn and oats were weakest, corn losing as much as 13 cents for the week in the May contract.

The current week started with a slight decline on Monday But the next day corn again developed independent weakness, dropping 3¾ to 6¾ cents a bushel.

Corn Weakness

The weakness in corn was disturbing It had been the strongest grain for the past few months Now, commission houses reported some selling of corn futures was coming from the country dealers and feed manufacturers who held cash corn. Why?

It was reasoned these interests were hedging the cash corn they held—that is, selling futures in case there should be any price decline They had not done that for more than a year They had held cash corn unhedged, certain they need not worry about a price drop.

The fact these interests were hedging indicated their customers were backing away from prices at which cash corn was being offered, as well as prices of various poultry and livestock feed mixtures using corn. Here, at long last, was consumer resistance.

Open Lower Wednesday

On Wednesday grains opened slightly lower. Within 10 minutes pronounced weakness developed Then, around 10:15 a. m., central standard time, came the deluge.

The outside rim of the corn pit is about 10 yards away from a bank of commission house telephones Beginning at 10:15, that small space was the scene of boy and girl messengers hurrying back and forth from the telephone to brokers in the pit, carrying selling orders.

A roar arose from corn brokers offering to sell Prices plunged Immediately, selling expanded in wheat and oats The activity was feverish. One board marker later said he couldn't hear the telegraph tickers knocking out quotations because of the noise made by shouting traders

In about 15 minutes, grains had dropped the limits permitted in a single session—10 cents in wheat, 8 cents in corn, 6 cents in oats

To trained market observers those 15 minutes were extremely significant True, prices had broken the limit before And they had recovered and gone higher But this time the situation was different. Why?

Break to Limit

This time, the limit break had occurred after continuously slumping prices for two weeks Markets which have a firm basis don't break wide open after a two-week slump. Such slumps are regarded as good buying opportunities in markets with a fundamental upward trend.

The market never recovered from that early morning price break Wednesday. All contracts ended at the bottom. Suddenly no wanted grain.

Yesterday, the market opened with wide losses. There were few buying orders in the pits But then bargain hunter, appeared. A minor rally developed It didn't last long Once again, prices slipped and closed with declines as great as permitted in one session.

Losses from the highs made only two-and-one-half weeks ago are huge. They amount to as much as 40¾ cents in wheat, 39⅛ cents in corn and 23 cents in oats Right now, the price break is easily the most severe since before the war.

Aside from the development of hedge selling in corn, there are numerous reasons offered for the break. Chiefly, they boil down to this: people who have held futures for several months want to sell, while new buying is restricted by high margin requirements and recent adverse publicity for all who buy or sell grains.

Basic Factors

In back of the selling move are basic factors which have been present for some time. They are:

The legal requirement of a wheat carryover of 130,000,000 bushels on June 30, an excellent crop outlook in Europe, protective snow in the winter wheat belt, poor domestic flour business and the knowledge that government purchases of wheat for export this year are nearing completion.

Well, where do we go from here?

New Automatic Photo Engraver Turns Out News 'Cuts' Quickly

By The Associated Press

HACKENSACK, N. J., Feb 6—Culminating a century of development, a new electronic photo engraving machine which automatically produces "cuts" from which pictures are printed is on trial in three New York area newspapers.

One of the new machines was shown at the offices of the Bergen Evening Record here by the Fairchild Camera and Instrument Corp. of New York, which produced it. Others are at the Newsday at Hempstead, N. Y., and the Ridgeway Herald-News.

Twenty-three other test engravers are being installed, but general production is not expected to be under way until July.

The new engraver was acclaimed by publishers who saw the demonstration as economical and a spur to increase use of pictures in newspapers, particularly smaller newspapers without conventional photo-chemical engraving plants.

The machines will rent for $160 a month, and Fairchild does not plan to sell them outright.

Produces Only Half-Tones

The engraver produces only half-tones, not line cuts, and makes the conventional dot pattern by puncturing a plastic sheet with a heated stylus The test machines turn out 5-screen engravings. Laboratory models produce cuts of better than 100-screen

An operator can learn to produce photo-engravings on the electronic machine in "a few hours," the firm reports After being loaded with a picture and the plastic material on which the engraving is made, then adjusted, the machine functions automatically.

The Fairchild engraver turns out cuts at the top rate of four square inches a minute. It will produce the maximum size engraving it will accommodate—8x10 inches—in 18 minutes

The new engraver produces engravings only of the same size as the picture copy Pictures of other sizes must be enlarged or reduced to the required size.

Ready To Use

As they come from the machine, the plastic engravings need only a scrubbing in clear water and they are ready to be trimmed on a paper cutter and mounted. They may be printed directly or matted.

The new engraver, which looks like Wirephoto transmitting-receiving equipment, transmits a picture to itself. But instead of receiving a picture, it receives a photo-engraving.

It operates this way:

An electric cell scans the picture in a series of 350 quick "looks" every second. Each time, it measures the lightness or darkness of a tiny spot 1/100 by 1/100 inches, and transmits a comparative electric signal.

Stylus Cuts Surface

The signal drives a red hot stylus into the sheet of plastic The lighter the tone, the deeper the stylus enters the plastic sheet.

EXPERT SAYS PEAK PASSED

Corn, Wheat and Oats Decline Nearly to Limit at Market Opening.

By The United Press

CHICAGO, Feb. 6 — Grain prices plunged downward for the third day in a row today in a major market break which many experts believed meant the end of the inflationary food spiral

Corn, wheat and oats prices at Chicago, Minneapolis and Kansas City dropped the limit or close to it.

At Chicago, on the nation's biggest grain exchange, the flurry of opening trade lasted only three minutes Traders swarmed into the pit as the opening gong sounded.

Sellers opened the bidding on corn at prices eight cents below yesterday's close Thus is the limit loss on corn for a single day's trading, but even so there were few buyers.

Corn futures generally had dropped the full 24 cents in the last three days. Wheat, with a 10-cent limit of decline, had dropped 30 cents a bushel in three days on the three big exchanges.

"We've definitely seen the peak," said Richard Uhlmann, president of the Chicago Board of Trade.

Flour Prices Cut

At Minneapolis, three large milling companies cut flour prices in the first visible sign that the commodity price break may work its way down through the wholesale level to the corner grocery store.

Most branches of the food industry agreed, however, that housewives could expect no lower retail food prices for two weeks, if then.

Uhlmann said wheat had dropped 40 cents from the peak of six weeks ago.

"Nobody knows how low it will go," he said.

Corn, wheat and oats prices plunged downward yesterday as the big Chicago, Minneapolis and Kansas City exchanges for the second straight day. The price break was reflected immediately on the New York Stock Exchange, which yesterday hit the lowest average since June of last year.

Wholesale Price Down

At Minneapolis, Russell Miller Milling Co said it had cut prices to wholesalers 40 to 60 cents per hundred pounds in the last three days Company spokesmen said, however, that it would take 60 to 90 days for the reduction to be passed on to consumers.

Commander - Larabee Milling Co. announced it had lowered flour prices to jobbers and bakers. But added that its prices vary daily with the grain market.

"We can't say how much this will affect retail prices But it should eventually push them down," a spokesman said.

International Milling Co. said the flour price cut should be felt by consumers within 30 to 60 days.

General Mills said flour prices have been following the downward trend of the grain market since Jan. 15. The company said its wholesale prices had fallen 70 cents a hundredweight. It added, however, that the price of cereals would not be greatly affected.

See Retail Effect

General Mills merchandising experts said that the decline already was "definitely being reflected" in retail flour prices, although it is too early yet to determine how much.

Spokesmen for the meat industry were less encouraging, although wholesale meat prices in the New York market have dropped substantially since Jan. 15, George Dressler, secretary of the National Association of Retail Meat Dealers, said the market break would have no immediate effect in butcher shops.

He said that the price downturn probably would not last long enough to be noticed by consumers. Dressler said he expected no material change in meat prices between now and next summer.

He said, however, that lower corn prices definitely affect the price of meat, but he said there was no telling how long it would take.

CUT IN TRUMAN BUDGET URGED

102-Member Committee of Congress Advises Slash of $2,500,000,000.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Feb 6 — A senate-house committee today formally recommended $2,500,000,000 be cut from proposed government spending during the fiscal year starting July 1.

The 102-member committee composed of members of the senate and house tax and appropriations committees was created by the congressional reorganization act to put a ceiling on government expenditures

The recommendations it approved were drafted by a subcommittee and are subject to senate and house approval. Even so they are not binding but constitute merely a fiscal goal for congress to shoot at.

The committee, composed of Republicans and Democrats, with the GOP in control, recommended a minimum payment of $2,600,000,000 on the national debt next year

It said its overall recommendations were based on these considerations

1 The spending program proposed by the President "contemplates little or no reduction in the number of federal employes"

2 The President recommends $5,735,000,000 in new spending for which there is no congressional authorization

3 The nation "is in grave danger of runaway inflation which, if historical precedents are any guide might, if unchecked, result in serious economic upheavals" and since government spending, national and local, is the single greatest inflationary force in our country, these expenditures should be curtailed wherever possible."

4 Large scale expansion of public works projects should be limited to projects "deemed urgently necessary to the public interest."

5 The taxpayers "should be relieved somewhat of the burden of war-time taxation

6 "Discretion cautions us to conserve our financial resources" in view of heavy contemplated expenditures for foreign aid and national defense.

TRAIN HITS AUTO, AUTO HITS SHANTY

Driver Unhurt in Accident at State St. Crossing.

Virgil Harrell, 65, of near Prospect narrowly escaped death in a train-auto crash at the North State street Erie railroad crossing yesterday at 2:10 p. m. when a New York Central freight train, coming on the Erie tracks, struck his car, which was stalled on the tracks

Mr. Harrell, who is employed at the Houghton Sulky Co., had just finished work and was enroute to his home. S. D Peters of 201 North Prospect street, watchman at the crossing, said Harrell attempted to push his car from the path of the approaching train, but the train was within 200 feet when Harrell jumped back into the car and failed to start it. Peters said he had tried to persuade Harrell to leave the car, just before the crash.

The automobile was demolished, and the watchman's shanty was knocked off its foundation when the car was thrown against it.

The train was held up for nine minutes Mr. Peters said.

Charges FBI Gestapo Part of Truman Plan

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Feb. 6—The bitter Democratic feud over our civil rights hit a new pitch today. Senator Russell (D-Ga) contended President Truman is planning an FBI "gestapo" to break down race segregation in the south

Russell told a reporter the south's revolt against the President's call for new measures to knock down racial barriers 'is more serious than any I have seen in my lifetime.'

This is true, the Georgian said, because southern Democrats have interpreted the President's demand for an end to Jim Crow laws on trains and buses as the opening wedge in a fight to halt all race segregation.

Interpret Meaning

That could mean, he said, Negroes and whites would attend the same schools, swim in the same pools, eat together and eventually, intermarry.

"The President has made the flat declaration that he considers segregation to be discrimination and a violation of civil rights," Russel declared "He wants to set up a commission and hire a lot of lawyers to fight segregation wherever it exists.

"He has ordered the federal bureau of investigation to work with the department of justice civil rights division and says it is giving specialized training to its agents This is nothing more or less than an FBI gestapo to break down race segregation in the south."

Other Developments

Russell's charge highlighted these other developments.

▶ Chairman Taft (R-Ohio) called the senate Republican policy committee together to pick a spot on the legislative schedule for an expected battle with filibustering southerners over one or more civil rights measures.

▶ Senator Ball (R-Minn) predicted that congress will pass no anti-job descrimination bill with enforcement provisions. Ball voted "no" when the senate labor committee approved such a measure yesterday, seven to five.

▶ Reports spread that Gov Fielding L. Wright of Mississippi would move at a Tallahasse, Fla., meeting of southern governors today to have them issue a call for an 'independent' Democratic convention to split away from Mr. Truman

▶ A Democratic official said the party's national committee will "sit tight' to see what happens before it charts its course.

Taft, who voted in committee against a bill to set up a fair employment practice commission with enforcement power, told reporters it will be up to the GOP policy group and the conferences of all Republican senators to decide when it or any similar measures should be brought up

The Ohioan, a GOP presidential candidate, said he opposed the committee-approved FEPC bill because he believes it would be better to set up a commission which would seek to end job discrimination by voluntary means.

Tools Taken From Wreck Returned In Conscience Week

By The Associated Press

TIRO, O., Feb. 6—People do have a conscience, the citizens of this Crawford county community could boast today

A train-truck collision here Jan 25 killed the driver, Vila Brunell, 38, of Pittsfield, Mass., and spilled his load of golf and tennis balls and tools all over the road

Tiro people went out and gathered up most of them

Then Mayor Robert Eckstein and the pastors of the village's two churches, Rev. R. H. Miller and Rev. Kenneth Stover, appealed to them.

The mayor put up boxes, marked "for salvaged tools" at the churches and the railroad depot Tiro had a "conscience week".

Today, Mayor Eckstein reported, $2,000 worth of merchandise has been put into the boxes.

"Most of the people," added Mr Stover, "did not realize they were stealing or doing anything wrong. They were just seized by mob psychology when they saw tools strewn on the ground and made off with what they could."

If the truck owner, the All State Freight Co of Akron, cares to give any reward, the mayor said, it will be put to some worthy cause at Tiro.

PLANE CRASH KILLS WOMAN

Navy Catalina Falters on Columbus Takeoff, Smashes Into House.

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O, Feb. 6—The Navy today investigated a Catalina flying boat crash which yesterday killed a 23-year-old Columbus woman and destroyed the house in which she lived.

Lt. Cmdr Ned Colgan said a board of inquiry or an investigating officer would be named

The Catalina smashed into a frame house near the Naval Air Station at Port Columbus, both plane and house burned The body of Miss Wilma Burris was recovered from the charred ruins several hours later.

Six crewmen escaped without serious injuries.

C E A Brown, state aviation director, issued a statement last night in which he said:

Pilot Warned

"Early investigation by the Ohio aviation board and the state highway patrol indicates * * * the pilot was warned of the hazards to safe flight by the presence of ice and snow on the wings.

"I happened to be attending a meeting in the office of the Civil Aeronautics Administration, overlooking the airport, at the time and was an eye witness to the crash.

"As one competent observer remarked later 'never in the history of aviation have so many expert observers watched, powerless to prevent what would ordinarily have been a normal routine flight, with the certain knowledge that it would end in tragedy'."

The plane's pilot, Lt. Cmdr. J. R. Delezene, was quoted by the base's public information officer as saying he was aware of the snow on the wings of his plane.

"He obtained permission from the control tower," said Lt. Cmdr Colgan, "to taxi up and down an inactive runway in an effort to blow off the snow.

Snow on Wing

"He succeeded except for a small patch of snow on the left wing near the motor. He did not consider this patch of snow enough to impair the airworthiness of the plane."

Witnesses said the plane plunged into Miss Burris' home from about 30 feet after taking off on a routine check flight.

Two occupants of the house escaped injury.

Delezene said the plane's left wing began "dragging" after the plane became airborne, witnesses reported.

New York Stock Quotations

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, Feb. 6 — Bidding for a technical comeback brought modest plus signs for individual stocks today although many market leaders exhibited notable indifference.

Professional short covering and other buying was attributed to the thought the list had been oversold notwithstanding the recent slump in commodities. Numerous customers still held aloof, however, because of doubts regarding business, taxes and international affairs."

Dealings slowed after moderately active start and quotations were a trifle uneven near midday.

Attracting support were Rock Island Railroad, Santa Fe, Southern Pacific, Chesapeake & Ohio, Standard Oil (NJ), Texas Co., United Air Lines, Youngstown Sheet, Chrysler, General Motors, Sears Roebuck, J. I. Case, Schenley, Douglas Aircraft, American Telephone, Union Carbide and Owens-Illinois.

On the offside at intervals were Bethlehem Steel, Studebaker, Packard Motors, International Harvester, Western Union, Consolidated Edison, Anaconda, International Nickel, Allied Chemical, Southern Railway, Union Pacific and Pennsylvania Railroad.

MACKENZIE

What has happened in the past couple of days is this:

Turkish Foreign Minister Necmeddin Sadak has declared that his country intends to stand firm against all Russian demands. He also has spoken of Turkey's "ever increasing friendly relations with England and the feeling of gratitude in Turkey for the American aid program." At the same time it became known that Turkey had recalled her ambassador from Moscow in retaliation for Russia's withdrawal of the Soviet envoy to Turkey, though this action doesn't mean a break of diplomatic relations.

OVER IN GREECE it was reliably stated that Greek airfields were being strengthened with anti-aircraft guns and search lights, and America was said to have delivered a number of reconnaissance planes to bolster the Greek air force. This, of course, is to aid Greece in her fight against Communist-led guerrillas seeking to establish a Soviet Greek state in the north, close to Bulgaria, Yugoslavia and Albania —which the Athens government charges are aiding the Red rebellion.

In Tehran Premier Ibrahim Hakimi Al Molk has rejected a Soviet protest about American activities in Iran as "absolutely baseless and void of truth." The Russians had charged that the actions of a U. S. military mission in Iran constituted a threat to the Soviet border—a charge which U. S. Ambassador George V. Allen characterized as "an improper interference in the internal affairs of Iran." Furthermore, the Tehran government has accused Russia of giving refuge to Iranian rebels.

IN SHORT, it's clear that these three countries still are determined not to let Russia "get away" with what they regard as "rough stuff." And of course all this is tremendously important when we consider that control of the Mediterranean area is involved.

It is doubly significant in that this whole situation would seem to be working toward a climax. The American attitude of course continues to represent the Truman doctrine of providing aid to weak countries to resist Communist aggression. There has been no apparent change in that, but the question does arise as to what extent this program shall be continued. The funds for this program will run out June 30 when congress must decide whether the aid already given is sufficient to maintain the Truman policy or whether new funds shall be provided.

Thus the developments of the next few months in this struggle may be momentous.

SCOTT ON STAND — Los Angeles Attorney Joseph Scott, representing Irish - American organizations, tells the senate foreign relations committee that his group protests spending "a single dollar of American taxpayers' money to Britain while the government at 10 Downing street persists in the insane division of Ireland."

Love's Perilous Path

By ADELE GARRISON

My father's conjecture was correct. In less than a half minute after Harry Underwood went to the door to answer the signaling knock, he ushered Mr. 'K.' into the room.

"I'm sorry to be so late, Chief," he said, "but we had to detour a bit."

My father's eyes quickened with interest.

"You mean you were trailed?"

"I don't know," the FBI man answered. "But a couple of cars looked suspicious to me, to Gus, and to our driver. So we made a few detours. I knew you didn't want any chances taken."

"And you were right," my father said. "Sit down and rest a minute while I bring you up to date. But, first, tell me, the thugs you were escorting are safe in the secret cells."

"Safe, comfortable, and I think they'll be willing to give us some information if we approach them rightly," Mr. 'K.' replied. "They were ready to yell uncle, when we proposed a hypodermic on them—they evidently are deadly afraid of a needle—and they were like lambs all the way down to the hideaway.

"They were pretty worried when they found it wasn't a police station—I think they know their way around those—but I had the guards take out the gags and the ear stuffing, and take off the blindfolds and the binding ropes. I put them in separate cells, and instructed the guards to watch out for talking between them."

My father nodded. "A very wise precaution," he said. "Go on. What else did you do?"

"Well," the FBI man went on, "I told Gus to give them as good a dinner as he could manage them, and then let them have an undisturbed night's sleep. They'll be all ready for you to interview in the morning."

"I shall attend to that duty early," my father said, "and thank you, for attending to an unpleasant business most efficiently. And now, we will proceed with more important business."

I saw Mr. 'K.'s' head go up alertly, and knew he had guessed what was the nature of the "most important business." And there was something in the eyes above his inscrutable face which gave me another conjecture, that he had something more than an academic interest in the mysterious feminine guest.

I cast my mind back over my father's description of the woman. He had said she was brilliant, able, patriotic, but he had said nothing about her looks. Was she beautiful also?

Another question leaped into my mind. Harry Underwood had told us that "Exhibit A" would give us a bit of a shock, that she already had surprised Lillian and himself. I put aside my conjectures again to listen to my father.

"I have been telling Margaret and Dicky about your friend in the library," he said. "Of course Harry and Lillian already know everything there is to tell. But we have waited for you to bring her out and introduce her to them.

"I prefer that you should do it," my father said inexorably. "Will you please go now and have Lillian and our guest come back with you?"

"Of course," Mr. "K." said quietly, and left the room forth with. When he came back a minute later, escorting Lillian and the mystaerious stranger, I caught my breath, and heard a sibilant intake of breath from Dicky.

"Grace Draper!" I muttered to myself, shaking at the name of the long-dead woman who so nearly had ruined my marriage in its early years. "She has come back to life!"

NEWSPAPERARCHIVE®

County O. S. U. Alumni Recall College Days at Annual Dinner

Memories of campus days came back to Marion county alumni of Ohio State University who attended the association's annual dinner last night in the Hotel Harding ballroom.

It was a homecoming for the guest speaker, Wilson B. Dumble, assistant professor of English at Ohio State. Professor Dumble, a native of Marion, taught here before going to the university, where he has been associated with the department of English since 1929.

Prof. Dumble's keen sense of humor and humble wit for which old timers in acquaintances knew him, have not deserted him.

Anecdotes Related

Introduced by toastmaster William K. Davis, "Who knew him when," Prof. Dumble responded with a light and amusing talk featured by recollections of his days at Marion and his career at the university. His anecdotes and accounts of the tribulations of a liberal-minded professor of English with his students were pleasing to the memory of former students, some of whom had sat in his classes.

Although Prof. Dumble has long since gone from Marion his memory of his home town as Buckeye Alumni were pleased with a pleasant reference to a Marion Elks luncheon to which Prof. Dumble performed before the first World war raged at the old Grand Opera house on South State street, present site of the Ohio theater. He assisted director of the then Elks Chanter Committee to secure famous as Andy of the radio team, Amos 'n Andy.

In a more serious vein he paid brief tribute to the faculty at the university for its fine work, both in the field of teaching and student relations. He noted the greatly expanding faculty in the very department of English, mentioning that in the last few years the staff has increased to 125.

Much of the progress, he said can be attributed to the efforts of Harlan Hatcher, arts college dean and outstanding authority on contemporary drama.

Toastmaster Davis also introduced John B. Fullen, alumni association secretary. Mr. Fullen spoke briefly, gamely recovering from a humorous commentary by Davis on the banquet duties of an association secretary.

Report Made on Fund

The secretary's plug for the endowment fund and extension of finances was not spiritless however, as Robert T. Mason, regional director for the fund, made a brief report after being introduced by Judge Edward J. Russ.

Marion association officers were reelected following the report of the nominating committee made by J. E. Frew. They are: president, Judge Russ; first vice president, Robert T. Mason; second vice president, Mary J. Stafford; secretary, Esther Williamson; treasurer, Robert Haldeman.

Members of the advisory board retained for another year are Harold Bracy, Erwin Breithaupt, Madge Cooper, Marian Conley, Margery Eymon, Richard D. Myers, William K. Davis, James E. Frew and J. L. Halberstein.

School Music Groups Heard

The Mi-notre a cappella choir from Harding high school under the direction of L. G. Jones and featuring a girls ensemble and male quartet presented selections. The group sang three selections with the ensemble and quartet featured in two individual numbers each, all maintaining the reputation of the fine school choral group.

Following the speaking program, movies of the 1947 Ohio State-Northwestern football game, voted the sports oddity of the year by virtue of State's 7-6 victory won after the game actually was over, concluded the program.

Your Good Health

By DR. BERMAN N. BUNDESEN

Tonsillectomy May Aid Youngsters Hearing

A great many parents may have observed that their youngsters seem to hear better following an operation for the removal of tonsils and adenoids. This practical observation has a sound basis in medical fact.

It happens that during childhood, infections of these structures, which are composed of lymphoid tissue, stimulate their growth with the result that such tissue may grow excessively. This increased growth may sometimes block the throat opening of the Eustachian tube whose other extremity ends in the middle ear, thus leading to some loss of hearing, particularly for high tones.

The removal of tonsils and adenoids in such cases usually results in restoration of the hearing, but occasionally it is not possible to remove every last particle of lymphoid tissue by operation and, in these instances, the remaining tiny particles may enlarge and continue their blocking of the Eustachian tube. When the tube is blocked, there is an excessive secretion of mucus, which further interferes with the hearing.

It has been suggested that, in those cases where there is an overgrowth of lymphoid tissue, good results may be obtained by the use of radium. A convenient applicator has been devised for carrying out the treatment, and only a short period of irradiation is required. The treatment should not be undertaken if there is any acute inflammation of the throat present. One treatment is usually sufficient. If a second treatment is necessary, it should not be given until four to six weeks have elapsed. The length of exposure, of course, will depend upon the amount of radium present in the applicator, and will vary from two to twenty minutes.

Children with infected tonsils and adenoids may suffer from asthma and repeated colds. Seemingly, with each cold, an asthma attack develops. Treatment of the lymphoid tissues also seems to benefit the asthma. As a rule, it is better to carry the treatment out during the summer months since at that time colds are less frequent and the treatment can probably be given without interruption.

The child who has some loss of hearing for high tones should have an examination made of the throat to determine whether or not some excessive lymphoid tissue is present. If it is present, treatment with radium should be given some consideration.

Questions and Answers

J. B.: Last spring I had a bad cold. Since then I have been unable to taste or smell anything. What can be done for this?

Answer: Loss of the sense of smell may be due to a chronic sinus infection or to some type of nervousness. In many cases, the exact cause of the trouble cannot be found. The sense of taste will return with the sense of smell, since one depends upon the other. You should have an examination by an ear, nose and throat specialist.

RAISE OBJECTION TO GALION SCHOOL SITE

Special to The Star

GALION, Feb. 5 — Petitions seeking reconsideration of the location of the proposed new North Elementary school were given the Galion Board of Education Thursday night by a group of citizens objecting to the suggested site in the municipal Heise park.

Milo G. Fisher acted as spokesman for the group of citizens. He said that 99 per cent of the people contacted in trying to get a cross-section of percentage of opinion did not want the new buildings located in Heise park, the site the board already has approved, for three reasons: that it is not centrally located, that narrow Erie street would endanger lives of small children, and that it would not improve Heise park. He suggested the present site on North Market and Grant streets of one directly across the street from the present buildings on North Market street.

Robert M. Corry, president of the school board, assured the group that the board would give the proposal consideration, and that a representative of the group will be called in when the board is ready to make its decision. Corry said that the board had planned to have a rotating committee to work with the board in planning the school building program which includes construction of two new elementary buildings, North and South. Board members said that Heise park had been selected because the old site, with purchase of additional property, would not provide adequate facilities for the one-story type of building planned, and some fifty or sixty thousand dollars would be saved by using the Heise park site.

Practically all analysts agree the market is entitled to some sort of rally. It may come anytime. It may be postponed until next week. But any such drastic one-way price movement as this is followed by a move, no matter how temporary, in the opposite direction.

Some traders believe the break is temporary, particularly in corn and oats. They say it's still a long time before new crops of these feed grains will be harvested. Supplies will grow smaller and smaller. Prices will bounce back and may, these analysts assert, go above January highs.

But most analysts believe the big bull market in grains is over, particularly in wheat. New crop wheat will start coming to market this spring. With crop prospects good, with the world demand slackening, these analysts come to one conclusion — three dollar wheat is gone.

In Boston and with the New York Yankees he went on to become a fabulous sports figure of world-wide fame. Of his many records, his 60 home runs in the 1927 season has never been equalled. ADMITS HAMMER SLAYING OF MOTHER

By The United Press

CINCINNATI, Feb. 6—Lloyd D. Sieker, 24, Indianapolis, surrendered to police here today and said he killed his mother Wednesday with a claw hammer, officials said.

Siefker told police he killed his mother, Mrs. Cora Siefker, 54, without any reason.

"I was lying on a couch thinking," he said. "I got up and hit her with the hammer. I don't know why I did it. I didn't have any reason."

The youth said he remained at the home several hours after the reported slaying and then took a bus to Cincinnati. He remained in a hotel overnight and called police early today.

At Indianapolis, the body of Mrs. Seifker was found on a bed, her head smashed with a hammer. On the floor of her son's adjoining room lay a copy of "Murder Up My Sleeve."

Her son, Lloyd, 24, a radio station musician, was missing. The body of Mrs. Sieker, a seamstress, was found last night.

burning away the printing surface.

Thus, the stylus, in a staccato series of thrusts removes most of the printing surface to produce light tones and little of it for darker tones, producing a photo-engraved picture.

In conventional photo-chemical engraving, which makes cuts on zinc or copper, the printing surface is etched away with acid after the surface which is to remain to print the picture has been treated with a protective coating.

An electric engraver was first envisioned by Walter Howey, a Hearst editor. George Washington Jr. of Morristown, a member of the G. Washington coffee family, devised a similar machine independently. Fairchild bought the rights to both machines.

Associated Press engineers worked on such a machine, and cooperated with Fairchild on the present model making available their extensive data.

ATHENS, Feb. 6—The Greek Navy ministry today ordered its warships to attack and sink all unidentified submarines in Greek territorial waters.

The order followed the reported appearance of two strange submarines.

One was reported between the Peloponnesus and Crete, and another off the coast of Preveza, in the Ionian sea. Preveza is primarily a supply port for Epirus.

Troop and supply ships now are being escorted by destroyers and corvettes equipped with depth charges.

operation. Thereafter, each morning, members of the club will patrol the streets and then report on the success of the campaign.

The main objectives of the campaign are to get the various merchants in the downtown area to cooperate in sweeping the sidewalks in front of their places of business, putting the sweepings into containers instead of out into the street, and also to urge the citizens to use the refuse containers which have been placed at intervals on the main streets in downtown Marion.

Mr. Hall also announced that certificates of appreciation will be presented to the merchants as they cooperate with the campaign.

Club members, who will be future business men and women, announce it is their wish to secure cooperation of both the citizens and merchants in making Marion one of the cleanest cities in Ohio.

Miss Murl Frye, coordinator of distributive education, is advisor of the club.

Ohio Has an Opportunity To Honor Her Man of Year

SENATOR ROBERT [illegible] Ohio Republican leader and courageous statesman, is the [illegible] to the Republican people that he is [illegible] for the presidency.

A few months ago [illegible] announced on every hand by the state's Republican leaders, by the congressional delegation and [illegible] to make public announcement [illegible] to stand as a candidate for nomination.

He withheld an immediate answer at [illegible] modesty as in concern that the country might prefer someone less outspokenly devoted to fighting the wrongs of New Deal excesses. He made a trip to the west coast, with many stops [illegible] to see and hear exactly how the people felt about him personally and about [illegible] person of the ship of state.

The warm reception accorded Senator Taft everywhere in the West increased the eagerness of his Ohio following in Hamilton upon sending him to the Republican national convention as Ohio's favorite son and as the country's hope in the forthcoming campaign. He accepted the responsibility.

IN EACH of the state's congressional districts, conscientious and able representatives of the Republican party have filed petitions for nomination as delegates to the convention, openly and avowedly committed to the support of Senator Taft. Their election May 4 will assure the country of unanimity in Ohio Republican ranks.

Normally the election of delegates to a national convention is the source of little political excitement. It would be so now except that Harold E. Stassen's strategists have embarked upon an ambitious program. They hope to destroy party unanimity in Ohio, to split Taft's support even if in a minor fashion, and throw the convention into doubt about the senator's popularity at home.

Mr. Stassen thus pays a great compliment to Senator Taft by entering opposition candidates for delegates to the convention. He is saying, in effect, that Senator Taft is the strongest contender for the presidency, the man most likely to carry the party's banner, and must be weakened if a lesser man is to receive any attention at the convention.

THERE is heard, here and there, the occasional remark "Yes, Taft is a fine senator, a valuable man. He has done a good job in legislation. He should stay in the senate where we need him and where he knows what it's all about."

The increasing frequency with which the remark is made impels the suspicion that, true though the first part of it is, there is something more mischievous in it than meets the ear. As if to say that Mr. Taft, being a sound legislator, would not be a good executive.

Millions of people know better. They know he is a primely competent man for the White House for the very reasons that set him off as a good legislator. No one challenges his qualifications in domestic, international and economic affairs.

Time after time Senator Taft has thrown political consequence to the wind for the sake of the country. His viewpoint in every matter of importance is rooted in research, study, hard work, judicious balancing of the facts. He is candid and fearless. He does not evade.

A good legislator, he could not [illegible] a great president.

Call in the Psychologists

IN THE face of new high records for profits and dividends and an assured demand for output, the stock market has been in the dumps and now is apparently settling lower. Commodity and bond prices, previously firm, are settling too.

This will make venture money even harder to obtain than it has been. Investors have been turning to insurance companies, savings banks and other sources of guaranteed return. Speculation has slowed down to a walk. New enterprise looking for funds and established enterprise thinking about expansion are being seriously handicapped.

Superficially, this is a mystery—but only superficially. The mystery cannot be unraveled in terms of arithmetic. It's a job for the physchologists. The public is in a slump of confidence; the slump in markets is the result.

Investors are looking behind arithmetic at high taxes, high costs, high-priced inventories, the fool's paradise of inflation and the certainty that what booms must bust. What's happening to money is only the index of what's happening to people. They are uncertain about the present, the future, even the past, and their uncertainty is reflected in reluctance to take risks.

It may be argued with fair logic that they are wrong about this. But until the source of their misgivings are removed the arguments will fall on deaf ears.

Internal Soviet Troubles

By RAYMOND MOLEY

FRESH evidence of friction in the Soviet Russia appears in [illegible] of the troubles of the Professor Eugene Varga.

He has been removed from his post [illegible] as chief economic adviser to Stalin and to the Soviet government. The bureau of which he was head, "The Institute for World Economics," has been merged with the "National Economic Institute." All this because of the views expressed in Varga's recent book, "Changes in the Economy as a Result of World War II."

[illegible] time to time over a period of four years, this column has had occasion to mention Professor Varga. That has been because [illegible] not [illegible] an indicator of Soviet policy. It might be assumed that [illegible] he had the stamp of Stalin's approval. Four years ago, for example, he was the first to call for the Russian [illegible] reparations—in gold and manpower. The Varga figure is still the index of the elements of Molotov.

His occasional articles on [illegible] reached this country showed that he carefully watched American economic affairs through American publications. The very fact that he [illegible] stop from orthodoxy has brought upon his doctrinal [illegible] the importance which the views and the [illegible] had in shaping Soviet policy. Varga [illegible] more than 10 years old, is a deeply convinced Communist. Of all Soviet economists, he is the greatest authority on non-Soviet countries.

MOLEY

His Chief Sin

Varga's chief sin now in the eyes of the party chiefs is that he denies the firmly held and vigorously expressed Soviet conviction that a capitalist depression is imminent and that the United States will be the point from which a general crash will emanate. Varga does not look for a big depression before 1950. He flatly denies that profit hunger of the capitalist monopolists is responsible for the foreign policies of the Western powers.

Varga says that democratic and Socialist governments in the Western countries have for the time being mastered their major difficulties. In Europe, he says, the capitalist system has had no profit from the war. The major countries there have given up or lost much of their empires and the free enterprise economy of Western Europe is now the key of the peace of the Soviet people.

Hence, Varga concludes that it is wrong to assume a clash between the Soviet Union and the Western countries is essential to the preservation of capitalism. Quite the contrary is true, he says. There needs to be economic collaboration between the Western powers and the Soviet Union in the years immediately ahead, and this would be fruitful for all.

Contradicts Dogma

Thus, he contradicts the official Soviet dogma that Russia and its satellites must develop in isolation because of the danger of a capitalist collapse followed by capitalist aggression.

This heresy brought Varga before the party court. It is interesting that 29 Soviet economists chose to follow the venerated Varga and risk all consequences by agreement with him.

It is important for Americans to note that, while Varga has lost his influence in the Soviet machine, he retains his great reputation and his influence on thinking in non-official circles. It is, moreover, important to note that Molotov represents the more extreme view of non-cooperation, which Varga has offended and opposed. And, most important, the courage of Varga may have been strengthened by his belief that Stalin and the more moderate official elements may be more in line with the Varga thesis than this summary demotion may suggest.

The issue of importance to us is whether, in the internal struggle, the Varga point of view may ultimately prevail.

One Man's Opinion

By WALTER KIERNAN

Suggestions for improving our money are coming fast now but no one has suggested how to stretch it.

One congressman wants to exchange our old bills for new, another proposes six delicious colors of money and a third is listening to pleas for a seven-and-a-half-cent piece.

Before they're through they'll have Washington and Lincoln shaking hands on a six-dollar bill made out of the old five and one.

Sitting Bull will demand an assistant to sit on the 7½-cent piece with him and when that rose-colored money comes out, the rose-colored glasses had better come with it.

Up until now the only dissatisfaction expressed with our money was that there wasn't enough of it.

But if we're going to talk about 12 colors for our currency we'd better get Howard Johnson to set up the patterns for the treasury.

Big Year in Politics

Resemblance to 1940 Picture Noted.

AS PRESIDENTIAL politics moves into its quadrennial "big year," the nomination picture is much like that at the beginning of 1940. In both years, the Democrat in the White House obviously could be renominated if he wanted to be—and in both years he wanted to be.

In both 1940 and at the beginning of 1948, the leading Republican aspirants were Thomas E. Dewey and Robert A. Taft.

It is interesting to think back over some of the circumstances of the 1940 nomination. On New Year's day that year, the war in Europe was four months old. Poland had been absorbed—on the west by Germany, on the east by Russia. There wasn't much to choose between the two invaders.

Finland was at war with the Soviet Union, which was making little headway. On the western front, because there had been no hostilities on a large scale, many skeptics were talking about a "phony war."

President Roosevelt obviously would profit by the don't-swap-horses-while-crossing-a-stream philosophy, if he ran for a third term. In 1948, that philosophy hardly will benefit President Truman in his bid for a second term, even though the United States is engaged in what comes close to a non-shooting war with Russia.

By New Year's day 1940 a third term for Roosevelt had been repeatedly demanded by Secretary of Agriculture Henry A. Wallace and other administration leaders and supporters. Even so, Vice President John N. Garner had announced on Dec. 16 that he "would accept" the nomination. Alfred E. Smith on his 66th birthday, Dec. 30, had said that if the 1940 Democratic platform "comes out in fulsome praise of New Deal policies, it will be time to get out the walking shoes again."

A poll of Democratic voters announced by the American Institute of Public Opinion early in January, 1940, showed preferences as follows: Roosevelt, 78 per cent; Garner, 13 per cent; scattering, 9 per cent. Wallace did not have even 1 per cent.

It was considered remarkable that on Jan. 1, 1940, the leading Republican contenders should be Dewey and Taft, for neither had yet won his spurs in American political life. Dewey had been elected district attorney of New York county in November, 1937, and had been nominated for governor 10 months later, only to be defeated by Governor Lehman in the close election of November 1938. Taft had only one year in the senate where, with his party in the minority, he had yet had little chance to reveal his abilities and leadership qualities.

By Jan. 1, 1940, Dewey was out for the nomination in a big way. Taft was garnering delegates more quietly. An Institute of Public Opinion poll of Republican voters released in January, 1940, showed 60 per cent for Dewey, 16 per cent for Vandenberg, 11 per cent for Taft. Nobody was yet talking about a utilities holding company head named Wendell Willkie.

Dewey was to win most of the 1940 presidential primaries which he chose to contest, but thereby was to get many delegates who were not really for him. Taft delegates were to stick by their man better.

On the first ballot at the 1940 national convention, Dewey had 360 votes to 189 for Taft and 105 for Willkie, but on the second ballot the Dewey vote fell to 338 while the Taft vote rose to 203 and the Willkie vote to 171. On the fourth ballot, when Willkie forged ahead (he was nominated on the sixth), Dewey had only 250 votes to 254 for Taft.

Anti-Smoke Drive

Universities in Business

College-Owned Firms Reap Tax-Free Harvest.

THE house ways and means committee, which has been looking around for new sources of taxation, has brought to light some surprising statistics on the size to which tax-free business of former cooperatives has grown. The committee also should consider the facts that have been brought to light by a United States News investigator on the growth of colleges and universities' tax-free business holdings.

Firms are selling out to educational institutions which in some cases operate the businesses and pocket the tax-free profits. In other cases, they acquire only the plants or buildings and lease them to their original owners. The rental receipts are tax-free and the lessee can deduct the rental because it is a business expense. Sometimes this deduction is greater than what he has been paying for taxes, maintenance and depreciation.

In many cases, businesses are acquired for universities by drawing on their endowment funds sometimes a bond issue or a bank loan raises the necessary money. Ownership is vested in nonprofit organizations of alumni or friends.

College holdings of this type are many and varied. In the last year a large eastern school has taken over three concerns valued at from $3,000,000 to $35,000,000. Schools that have gone into business in a large way include New York university, the University of Pennsylvania, Washington university of St. Louis, Union college, Yale, Cornell and the University of Rochester.

Such holdings include a piston ring factory, a leather company, a Philadelphia department store building, a railroad freight station, more than 50 St. Louis buildings, a spaghetti factory and a chain of retail stores.

In all these cases the burden falls on competitors and taxpayers who don't have an opportunity to remove part of their earnings from the tax rolls. The idea is taking hold so fast the revenue losses soon will run into millions every year.

While government experts are hesitant about recommending taxes on educational institutions, several proposals are being studied. One would compel college-owned corporations to pay out at least 50 per cent of their profits to educational purposes. Another would withdraw tax exemption but would allow deductions for educational or charitable purposes. It doesn't appear, however, that Congress will take anything more than such corrective steps, the United States News reports.

Pointing with Pride

It's unfortunate that wage negotiations and strikes make news at the expense of the very real price that most union workmen have in their jobs, especially the tough jobs.

Members of Line Drivers' Union No. 224 of Los Angeles are feeling particularly proud of their part in moving the 200-inch mirror for the world's largest telescope on Mount Palomar in Southern California up to 5,600-foot slope. The contract for their difficult job was handled by the Behrea Truck Co., which used the same crew of Teamsters that moved the Howard Hughes flying boat from the factory where it was built to the testing area on the waterfront.

The telescope mirror and the special trailer on which it was carried weighed 60 tons. The tractor was driven by Floyd Green of Local 224. It was the largest piece of equipment ever used on California highways. The entire job was handled without a mishap—which is why Local No. 224 is pointing with pride.

Variety in Conversation

By TRUMAN TWILL

The conversation got switched somehow to what people shouldn't do when they talk. You know what I mean, as far as that's concerned now take Jim, for instance—you know Jim—he never finishes a sentence.

And furthermore, um, he has a nasty habit of talking as if he had a mouthful of mush. You know what I mean—hot mush, that is. And besides, he doesn't seem to have anything to say anyway, well, that is, not much. If you'll pardon the frankness and no offense meant to present company.

Or take Agnes, a wonderful girl and a good mother, as far as that's concerned, but when she talks her voice grates on you and she repeats herself all the time, uh, that is she doesn't seem to know how to what-you-may-call-it, modulate her tones.

As far as that's concerned, the fact of the matter is that talking has become, uh, a neglected art in the United States. If you know what I mean, and it's getting all cluttered up with words and phrases that don't mean a thing and besides, as far as that's concerned, people just don't know how to express themselves clearly in the first place. Inasmuch as, frankly they don't . . . well, you know.

Secondly and thirdly — also fourthly — they try to ring in a lot of fancy expressions that should be outlawed. For example, they don't say what they have to say in fewer words, they'd quit trying to say what they have to say in more words. And furthermore and frankly, if you please . . . most of them don't know nothing about grammar in the first place.

They uh, mumble too much and they get off on tangents and lose their listeners and have to be urged to start, and when they're going they have to be urged to stop. They bring in too many personal references, such as what they'd do if they were running the country and it keeps them bumping to run a neighborhood business, present company always excepted, of course. Uh.

And furthermore, to coin a phrase, we should all attend a course in public speaking, that is they are going to speak in public, heaven forbid, too many of them get stage fright doing at the drop of a hat—and did I tell you about the time I dropped a hat? It's a long story but I'll tell it to you anyway.

But to get back to Jim, well Jim said a— And as far as that's concerned, well, I mean is the conversation got switched somehow to what people shouldn't do when they talk and that's how Jim happened to be mentioned in the first place—Jim and his way of mush. It's tough to decide what can be done about it but something should be. If you get what I mean, because what I mean is that something should be, uh, done about it because uh, something should be.

"Peace Meeting" Plan Abandoned in '37 As "Too Dangerous"

By CORDELL HULL

(Copyright, 1948, by North American Newspaper Alliance)

INSTALLMENT XI

On Oct. 5, 1937 President Roosevelt delivered his famous "quarantine speech" at Chicago. Ever since his inauguration, Mr. Roosevelt had been struggling desperately to restore normal conditions at home, with the result that he was at times hampered in giving full attention to our foreign affairs. For my part, I was becoming increasingly worried over the growth of the isolationist sentiment in the United States, as evidenced by the activities of many peace organizations, by letters, petitions, and public opinion polls. I was also worried over the effect this fact would have on events abroad.

In September, knowing that the President contemplated an early trip across the Continent to the Pacific coast, I conferred with Norman Davis and expressed the strong opinion that the President should make a speech on international cooperation in the course of his trip, particularly in a large way since isolation was encouraged. Davis agreed with me. He accompanied Davis with me to call on the President, and we suggested the idea to him. He readily approved. He said that, if we would prepare the necessary data for the speech, he would deliver it during his trip.

We returned to the state department and prepared the address in the form of a first draft. We did not have the celebrated "quarantine" clause in our draft. The President himself was responsible for this insertion as he was preparing the speech shortly before delivering it. I did not know the phrase was there until the President uttered it.

"THE PEACE, THE FREEDOM, and the security of 90 per cent of the population of the world," said the President, "is being jeopardized by the remaining 10 per cent, who are threatening a breakdown of international order and law. Surely the 90 per cent who want to live in peace under law and in accordance with moral standards that have received almost universal acceptance through the centuries, can and must find some way to make their will prevail."

It seems to be unfortunately true that the epidemic of world lawlessness is spreading. When the epidemic of physical disease begins to spread, the community approves and joins in a quarantine of the patients in order to protect the health of the community against the spread of the disease."

The reaction against the quarantine idea was quick and violent. As I saw it, this had the effect of setting back for at least six months our constant educational campaign intended to create and strengthen public opinion toward international cooperation. Those of us who had been carrying on this campaign, through speeches, statements, and actions wherever possible, had been working as actively as we could; but we were always careful not to go too far lest a serious attack by the isolationist element throw us farther back than we were before. If we proceeded gradually and did not excite undue opposition, our words and actions, although not so dynamic or far-reaching as we might wish, had more effect on the world at large than if we made a startling statements or took precipitate action and then, because of the bitter reaction we aroused, presented the world with the spectacle of a nation divided against itself.

SIX OF THE MAJOR PACIFIST organizations issued a declaration that the President "points the American people down the road that led to the World war." The American Federation of Labor resolved: "American labor does not wish to be involved in European or Asiatic wars." Two representatives, Fish and Tinkham, threatened to have the President impeached. A Philadelphia "Inquirer" telegraphic poll of congress showed more than two to one against common action with the League toward the Far East. A campaign was launched to secure 25,000,000 signatures to a "Keep America Out of War" petition.

All this reaction, of course, received wide publicity, and was dulcet to the ears of Hitler, Mussolini and the Japanese warlords. It undoubtedly emboldened the aggressor countries, and caused the democracies of Europe to wonder if we could ever be with them in more than words. It was certainly followed by the bolder actions of Japan, culminating in the sinking of the United States gunboat "Panay" by Japanese planes two months later.

In this month of October, 1937, Under Secretary Welles evolved an idea for a world peace plan. He drew up a long memorandum and took it across the street to the President. He wanted the President to convoke a spectacular White House meeting of all the diplomatic representatives in Washington Armistice Day, Nov. 11. There the President would make a dramatic appeal to the nations to sit down at a conference table and work out bases for peace. The President would outline these bases. One was agreement on principles of international conduct; another was disarmament; a third was economic stability. He would conclude that, unless a peace policy were turned to, peace could not much longer be maintained.

ALMOST BEFORE I knew it, I found the President completely embracing this project. The colorful drama to be staged in the White House appealed to him. For several years he had pondered the idea of inviting the heads of the nations of Europe to hold a meeting with him at sea. Around a table aboard a battleship or cruiser he would work out with them a lasting peace. He had not reached the point of making a formal proposal, but he had sounded out a few persons, and word of his idea spread. The reaction, however, was none too favorable. Ambassador William Phillips, in Rome, wrote me on Oct. 9, 1936, after his first audience with Mussolini: "It was evident that Rosso (Italian Ambassador in Washington) had spoken to him (Mussolini) of the President's desire to meet the assembled Heads of European States. He smiled as he referred to it and, without committing himself, gave me a broad grin and shrugged his shoulders."

I myself felt that the net result of such meetings as the President was contemplating would be a loss. It was not possible to enter into complicated arrangements with governments just by sitting down around a table for a day or two and talking. For this reason other governments were not cordial to the idea. They knew that the President could not enter into secret agreements, which were probably the only agreements that could come from such a mid-Atlantic conference.

Something similar to what Welles had in mind had been proposed to Ambassador Joseph E. Davies by Hjalmar Schacht, head of the German Reichsbank, on Jan. 20, 1937, while Davies was in Berlin enroute to Moscow. Davies cabled me that Schacht told him he had been authorized by Hitler to submit proposals to France and England which would guarantee European peace, secure present boundaries, reduce armaments, establish a new form of a workable League of Nations, abolish sanctions, and obtain colonies for Germany. France was agreeable, he said, Britain not.

SCHACHT THEN SAID he hoped the President would call an international conference in Washington. When Davis commented that possibly the President would not be disposed to become entangled in such a matter unless there were some assurance of success, Schacht replied that the conference should not be called unless an agreement had been practically reached in advance. The conference should not be called an "economic conference" but a "peace congress."

When I found that the President was all for going ahead with the Armistice day drama in the White House, I earnestly argued against the project as being illogical and impossible. I outlined the situation to Mr. Roosevelt as I saw it. At this late stage in 1937, Germany, Japan and Italy had pushed their rearmament so far that there could be no doubt it was intended for offense, not defense, for conquest, not for peace. It would be fatal to lull the democracies into a feeling of tranquillity through a peace congress, at the very moment when their utmost efforts should actually be directed toward arming themselves for self-defense. I had seen the danger of military aggression for several years; now it seemed more immediate than ever; therefore it appeared to be wholly impractical for the peaceful nations to start a new movement for further disarmament among themselves alone, while the Axis powers continued furiously to arm. Any half-informed person knew that every effort for five years had been made to prevail upon the Axis nations to join in a disarmament agreement, and that they had deliberately refused and proceeded with rearmament on a colossal scale. The Axis powers would laugh at any such belated request of the peaceful nations for disarmament.

EVEN IF AN AGREEMENT could be reached, of what value would it be? All three members of the Axis had demonstrated repeatedly their total disregard for their pledged word and their contempt for treaties. The very word "treaty" had become a hiss and a byword with Hitler, Mussolini and the Japanese. The President already had had an idea of Axis reaction to his appeals when Mussolini replied that, having mobilized a million men and spent two billions lire, he simply had to invade Ethiopia or his prestige would be destroyed and he would incur the disdain of other countries. He truly echoed the sentiment of his Axis partners. They, too, had mobilized millions of men and spent billions of marks and yen, and they meant to take what they could.

Welles' somewhat pyrotechnical plan was to be "sprung" on Armistice day, without any advance consultation or sounding out of the other nations. Not to ascertain in advance the opinion of Britain and France, at least, seemed unwise and unfair. They were at that moment engaged in delicate negotiations with Germany and Italy; they were trying to keep alive and functioning the non-intervention committee for Spain; and to "spring" so ambitious a project on them without warning might seriously embarrass them.

IN JUNE, 1937, Norman Davis, then in London, had sounded out Prime Minister Chamberlain on the prospect of a visit to Washington to see the President. Mr. Roosevelt was willing to extend the invitation, but thought it best for Chamberlain to come after congress adjourned in September, and he also thought that careful diplomatic preparations should be made in advance of the visit.

Chamberlain wrote a letter to Davis on July 8 and Davis forwarded it to the President and me, stating that he must turn down the idea of a meeting with the President in the autumn. He said he did not think the time was ripe; that nothing would be more disastrous than that a conference, which would inevitably attract the utmost publicity, should fail to produce commensurate results; and he did not see at the present moment that we could expect to achieve the purposes we had in view.

As for the Orient, Japan had made it clear she did not want occidental meditation between her and China and there was little likelihood she would attend a peace congress with any intention of agreeing to anything substantial.

In the various conversations I had with the President on this subject, he did not take issue with the views I presented. Eventually the project was abandoned and we proceeded with our constant efforts to rearm and to arouse public opinion to the serious danger of world conflagration.

Fly in Puerto Ricans For Steel Mill Jobs

By The Associated Press

CLEVELAND, O., Feb. 6 — A DC-3 transport plane carrying 26 Puerto Ricans hired to work at the National Tube Co. plant in Lorain, O., landed at Cleveland airport early today.

The men were flown in by the S. G. Friedman farm labor agency of Philadelphia. Friedman said some 200 Puerto Ricans had come to National Tube since last November. The plant is a subsidiary of United States Steel Corp.

Friedman said the men received only $3 for an eight-hour day in sugar plantation field in Puerto Rico, but make between $45 and $90 a week here.

Plan Bucyrus Meeting On Pennsy Underpass

Special to The Star

BUCYRUS — To consider the proposed construction of an underpass at the Pennsylvania railroad crossing on West Mansfield street, a meeting of city, county and state highway officials has been arranged for Feb. 10 at 2 o'clock in city council chambers.

The meeting is the culmination of a movement which has been underway by individuals and groups for some time aimed at elimination of the crossing which has been the scene of numerous accidents in recent months, several of them fatal.

RESERVE OFFICERS PRESENT PROGRAM

Members and Guests Hear Speakers, See Movies.

Members of the Marion Area Chapter, Reserve Officers association, were joined by guests for a dinner and program Tuesday night in the Marion club room at Hotel Harding. Col. Hubert L. Taylor presided and also discussed training activities for which credit hours will accrue for promotion and maintenance of reserve commissions. Major LeRoy Kohlhorst, chairman of the committee in charge of plans for national security week, and Capt. John Mills, chairman of the membership committee, made their reports. The members were asked to write congressmen and senators advocating support of pay bill for inactive duty training pay for reserve officers similar to the pay of the national guard and naval reserve.

Guests included Major Lee Burnham of the Army recruiting office, Captain John Weaver, unit instructor for the officers reserve corps, and Captain Ralph E. Hamilton, Captain Lewis W. Keith, Lt. Joseph D. Vaughn and Lt. Charles P. Fischesser from the Marion Engineer depot.

Major Burnham talked on the activities of the Army and Air Corps recruiting offices here and Capt. Weaver, unit instructor, answered questions relating to Reserve affairs.

For the program hour Capt. Weaver and Sgt. Charlie Boulware presented two motion picture films, "The Fighting First," which followed the First division through Africa, Sicily and the offensive across the English Channel, and "White Safari," the story of a Canadian expedition on a 3,000-mile trip through the Arctic region to test new equipment. For the meeting March 2 officers from Wright Field, Dayton, will be guest speakers.

Engravers on Cleveland Papers Threaten Strike

By The Associated Press

CLEVELAND, Feb. 6—Members of the AFL photo-engravers union employed by Cleveland's three daily newspapers have voted a strike in support of demands for a 15 per cent wage increase, but have set no date pending possible reopening of negotiations.

At a meeting last night, the union local rejected an offer of an $8.80 weekly pay boost, a figure similar to the settlement reached with the CIO Newspaper Guild, the AFL Typographical Union, newspaper delivery drivers and other craft unions having contracts with the Plain Dealer, the News and the Press.

The union also seeks six days' sick leave annually and three weeks' vacation.

The publishers' offer would bring the engravers' scale to $103.80 for a 35-hour week for night work and $98.80 for 37½ hours on the day shift.

$100,000 ASKED IN SUIT AGAINST ERIE

Filed by Widow of Man Killed at Green Camp.

A suit for $100,000 damages has been filed against the Erie Railroad Co. by Mrs. Evolena Bowker of Green Camp.

She charges negligence on the part of the railroad caused the death of her husband, Kenneth H. Bowker.

He was killed while a passenger in a car driven by John Louck, of Green Camp. Mr. Louck drove onto the Erie crossing on Elevator street in Green Camp into the path of a train at 6:30 a. m. May 15, 1947.

Mrs. Bowker claims the train was traveling at an excessive speed of 40 miles per hour through Green Camp. She has filed suit on behalf of herself and her six months' old son.

RENT CONTROL BATTLE NEAR

Greatly Relaxed Restrictions Provided in Bill Now Before Congress.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Feb. 6—A bill to extend rent controls 14 months in greatly relaxed form threatened to bring on an election year free-for-all in congress today.

Some Democrats moved to put more teeth in it even before it reaches the senate for debate. Some Republicans defended it as a deserved break for landlords.

Chairman Tobey (R-NH) called the full banking committee to a closed door afternoon meeting to decide what to do.

The bill is the product of a subcommittee headed by Senator Cain (R-Wash).

It would:

1. Permit unlimited boosts in rents in cases where tenants and lords agree on leases running through all of 1948.

2. Wipe out government restrictions on building of such things as theaters and amusement parks.

3. Give local rent boards more say over whether rent ceilings should be increased or eliminated in their areas.

4. Continue whatever controls remain through April 30, 1949 under the federal housing expediter.

Senator Sparkman (D-Ala), a member of the full committee, told a reporter the no-limit on "voluntary" leases would give landlords "a lot of opportunity to coerce tenants into signing up at very big increases."

The law which expires Feb. 29 limits such increases to 15 per cent. Sparkman said he thinks that limit should be retained. He said he expected plenty of support within the committee for his view.

Events Scheduled By Eagles Lodge

There will be a chartered bus to take members of the band and the quartet to the meeting, it was stated.

A euchre contest will be played Wednesday night between a team of the Eagles auxiliary and the aerie team. Four applications for membership were received.

On Sunday, Feb. 29, initiation will be held in honor of the golden anniversary of the national organization of the Eagles lodge. Official date of founding of the order was Feb. 6, 1898, in Seattle, Wash.

GIFTS POURING IN ON WAR VET HERO

By The Associated Press

CLEVELAND, Feb. 6 — Hercules Latimer, hero of a daring rescue which saved a girl's life, says he "sure appreciates appreciation."

Deluged with letters, checks and dollar bills since he hung by his heels over a rapid transit track to save a girl in a wrecked auto, the 40-year-old Negro Army veteran shook his head in amazement today.

"My little niece said only crazy folks would do what I did," he grinned.

He became more serious as he declared: "I sure appreciate appreciation, if you know what I mean. But folks shouldn't be so nice."

Capping the flood of congratulations from writers throughout Ohio, the Boydston American Legion post here cited Latimer for valor.

The post also invited him to a meeting next week to receive members' thanks for his action last Sunday in saving the girl from the auto, which was dangling over an East Side bridge by one wheel, 50 feet above the car tracks.

Some 200 fellow employes at the Meister Bros. Warehouse here took up a collection to atone for Latimer's loss of $15, his hat and some medicine during the rescue. Latimer turned the money over to a sister.

CIRCLE MEETING HELD

Circle 8 of the First Presbyterian church met Tuesday night with Mrs. Loren Fetter on South State street with Mrs. Wayne Jenkins as assistant hostess. Mrs. James Rutherford and Mrs. Margaret Felder were welcomed as new members. Mrs. Joe Yannitell conducted devotions and Mrs. Mary Ann Planck presented a paper on "Catholic Customs vs. Presbyterian Customs." The next meeting will be with Mrs. R. L. Gettman on Mt. Vernon avenue.

In 1836, some stage coach companies in the United States instituted a system under which there were three classes of passengers; first class riding at all times, second class required to walk up steep hills or through deep mud, third class required to help push when the coach got into difficulties.

Judge Rules It's Libel To Call Man "Commie"

By The Associated Press

CHARLESTON, W. Va., Feb. 6 —Holding that it is libel on the face of it to call a man a "Commie," Circuit Judge Decatur H. Rodgers ruled Wednesday further testimony in Drew Pearson's suit against a West Virginia weekly would be restricted to "mitigation of damages."

The decision came on a suit brought by the Washington columnist against the publishers of the Jefferson Republican and its editor, R. J. Funkhouser. It was the latest in a series of opinions to the effect that it is libellous to characterize a person falsely as a Communist or Communist sympathizer.

Basis of the suit was an article referring to a lecture by Pearson at Charleston, W. Va., in 1946.

And now, by jing, it's fria!"

That was dished up some time ago by a gent named Philander Johnson.

Perhaps, on the other hand, you want to point out how you yourself rise above such petty things as meteorological disturbances. Snrivel them with this nifty from Pascal:

"The weather and my mood have little connection. 'I have my foggy and my fine days within me."

Maybe you just want to be tolerant and folksy about the whole business. Okay, whang this one on your nasal harp—right out of James Whitcomb Riley:

"It hain't no use to grumble and complain.
It's jest as easy to rejoice!
When God sorts out the weather and sends rain,
Why rain's my choice."

To cheer up a friend with a heavy cold, remind him that John Ray said in 1670:

"A green winter makes a fat churchyard."

You can also point out that "winter eateth what summer getteth," which an unknown poet wrote in 1460, or else "winter draws out what summer laid in," which is the way Thomas Fuller stole his idea 200 years later.

Shakespeare said so many things about winter he must have spent most of his life yearning for a hot water bottle, but he summed it all up thusly:

"Winter tames man, woman and beast."

For those who like a leer—even about the weather—Bill Nye bequeathed this:

"Winter lingered so long in the lap of spring, that it occasioned a great deal of talk."

WHEN DEW-NOSED acquaintances rant "will it never be warm again?" Console them with Shelley's immortal rebuke

"If winter comes, can spring be far behind?"

Or bat this one at them from Christopher Pearse Cranch:

"Nor from the perfect circle of the year
Can even winter's crystal gems be spared."

This will make you about as popular as a crutch. But if you get tired of hearing people moan about the lack of temperature, you can shut them up forever with the crisp snapper by James Howells.

"Change of weather is the discourse of fools."

LETTERS FROM OUR READERS

FACTS ABOUT RESERVE UNITS

Editor of The Star: In the past many criticisms have reached the Unit Instructor's Office in regard to organization of TO/E Reserve units. Mothers and fathers have stated we are trying to get their sons back into the Army. This is not true.

A Reserve TO/E unit is strictly voluntary and consists of one or two meetings per month, depending upon the class of unit. An enlisted Reservist does not volunteer for any active duty but merely is a member of an organization for protection of our peace. We are not likely again to be given two years or more by heroic allies to get ready. Next time—if there must be a next time—we are likely to be the first target. And so on short notice each one must be ready to take his or her place and go forward—not at the end of a few months, or a few years, but immediately. Otherwise it may be too late.

The mission of TO/E Reserve units is to be equipped in time of peace for rapid mobilization, expansion and deployment in case of emergency.

The advantages to enlisted and officer Reservists are promotions, continuation of longevity, advanced training, personal contact with fellow veterans, ability to further prevention of subversive actions of so-called patriotic organizations, and to hold their rank.

If any questions on the part of anyone in Marion area arise they may be answered by Unit Instructor's Office, 131-133 W. Center street, Marion, O.

AMVETS Disband At Carey; Join Legion

Special to The Star

CAREY—The AMVETS organization of Carey, Veterans of World War II, recently through joining the American Legion here, decided to disband, and turned over their funds of $145 to the Carey Memorial Park board.

Funds were earmarked for the purpose of paying part of the unanticipated cost of advertising in the campaign to complete the new park started four years ago in their honor. The money is also to be used to complete some project in their name. The Memorial Park issue in Carey was defeated in the last election.

CIRCLE HAS PROGRAM

For a meeting of the Philathea circle of Emanuel Lutheran church in the home of Mrs. Harry Smith of Courtland avenue Wednesday night, an article on Lenten hymns was read by Mrs. Raymond Gruber, and Mrs. Curtis Laubner and Mrs. Carl Hoffman sang. A paper on "Elizabeth, the Mother of John the Baptist," was presented by Mrs. Harry Kull. Mrs. E. H. Cooper led devotions. Plans were made for a rummage sale this month. Mrs. John Loeffert, Mrs. A. A. Stein and Mrs. Aynard Sollie won contest awards.

THE GOLDSMITH baseball adds 50 points to a batting average. So said Tony Lucadello at the Marion Baseball club banquet last night. Tony is the Cub scout in this area and explained that the Goldsmith ball is "live." When hit, it travels faster and goes further. But the local Cubs needn't worry about losing 50 points on their average. They have a contract to use the deader Wilson ball.

Besides scouting for the Cubs, Tony runs a baseball school on the side to brush up his prospects before turning them over to organized baseball. Last year, his school was in Mansfield, but this year it will be held in Greenville, O., and another one in Kalamazoo, Mich. ... Last year, Tony converted John Graney from a first baseman into a pitcher before sending him to the Marion Cubs late in the season.

TONY FIRST LOOKS for throwing ability in a prospect, then running, fielding, and last hitting.... That's just about the order Marion Cub Manager Zeke Bekeza rates baseball skills.... The idea is that if a player can't field and run, he won't last long enough to work on his batting.

Most of Tony's finds are made in the sandlots.... And some of the best sandlot talent is found in the American Legion Junior baseball program, he said...."It's a great organization."

TWO OF THE PRIZE finds he takes credit for are his brother, Johnny, now with the Newark Bears, and Hank Edwards.... Tony was playing a night game at Norwalk, O., when he met Hank in the outfield....He talked to the Cleveland Indians about Hank; they bought him, and Hank led the Ohio State league with a .387 batting average that year.

After failing to get anywhere playing baseball, Tony decided to switch to scouting....He has been with Detroit, Cleveland, St. Louis Browns, and now the Chicago Cubs, which he considers the finest organization of the lot.

Marion Baseball Club Meets New Manager

Lewis "Zeke" Bekeza Honored At Club Banquet Last Night

By BILL DIEM

Lewis "Zeke" Bekeza is a man who wants to go places as a baseball manager. He's the new Cub pilot who started his managerial career with Elizabethton, Tenn., two years ago after returning to baseball from four years in the Army Air Corps. Until then, his baseball career had been as a player—catcher, first base and outfield.

When he returned to Portsmouth, O., (then in the Piedmont league) in 1945 they decided to make a manager out of him, and sent him to Elizabethton, where he had two successful years.

Zeke had his first look at Marion, and the Marion Baseball club had their first look at their new manager yesterday, when he and Cub scout Tony Lucadello were honored dinner guests of the baseball club at the Banko restaurant.

Started in 1938

Zeke started in baseball in 1938 when, after one year of college, his original love—football—gave way to the diamond sport. He was entered in San Francisco university on a football scholarship, but played winter baseball after the gridiron season was over. Cub scout Dutch Reuther persuaded him to turn to baseball and he has been with the Cub organization since.

Zeke had his ups and downs in the Cub farm system. He started with the class B Moline, Ill., ball club, then went to Owensboro Ky., a class D club; then went to class A Tulsa and was sent to Jackson, Miss., a class B club that had a working agreement with Tulsa. For a while he played for Vicksburg, and says his greatest thrill in baseball came in his first game with that club when he hit three home runs. He entered the army in 1941.

Baseball Teacher

As manager of a class D club Zeke not only has managerial duties but is a baseball coach and teacher as well. And that's what he likes about his job—working with young men out to make a go of the profession. Here with the Marion Cubs, he'll also play, as he did at Elizabethton, though he would prefer to manage from the bench.

Last year he batted .351, hit 13 circuit clouts, and played catcher, first base and outfield, and brought his club to within two games of fourth place in the Appalachian circuit. If he has a weak man in the outfield, he'll play there; if the catcher is dropping the fast ones, he'll work in the battery.

Zeke is 30 years old, stands six-feet-two, and weighs 195. Married two years ago, he and his wife, Katheryn, have two children, Patrick Lewis, 15 months old, and Barbara Kay, who was born Jan. 16. He met Katheryn, a rabid baseball fan, while he was stationed in Detroit, in the army. She was working in the bomber plant at Willow Run.

Lives in Chicago Heights

The family lives in Chicago Heights, Ill., Zeke's home town. He plans to bring his family to Marion when the Cubs get back from spring training sometime in late April.

At the dinner last night Zeke expressed his gratitude at finding Marion such strong backers of organized baseball. "I've never met with a finer reception," said he.

MARTEL, SALLY ANN, STONE'S WIN Y GAMES

Martel Elevators defeated Pollak Steel, 48-45, in a nip and tuck basketball game at the Y.M.C.A. last night. Other winners were Sally Ann Inn over Universal Cooler, 51-49, and Stone's Grill over Commercial Steel, 40-38.

Pollak led Martel at the half, but faltered in the third quarter.

With the game deadlocked and six seconds left in the Cooler-Sally Ann encounter, Parish raced all the way down court to send up a layup which missed, but he recovered the rebound and put in a spectacular shot to win the game—Sally Ann's first of the season in the Y.M.C.A. Thursday night league.

Stone's took an early lead and outlasted a Commercial rally, to win by two points.

HARDING SET FOR GALION TONIGHT

To Play at Home 1st Time Since Jan. 17.

With the road trips temporarily at an end, Harding's Prexies will be playing in their own home gym for the next three consecutive games.

Tonight marks the beginning of the games on the home court, when the Presidents play host to the Tigers of Galion.

The Presidents, now showing a record of 7 wins and 4 defeats, having downed Delaware Wednesday night (39-34), to get back in the win column, are coming out with the new "look."

They looked much better against the Panthers than on several previous occasions this season.

The team spirit as a whole was much better at Delaware, and the boys showed indications of a desire to pull together. It takes spirit to come from behind and win, and that's what the Prexies did last week.

If the boys are truly rejuvenated, and if playing on the home floor means anything, the Harding crew should make it interesting for visiting teams in the next three encounters. The starting line-up for the Presidents tonight will have Dick Riddle at center, Merle Daum and Jim Coss at forwards, Dick Thomas and Dick Leffler at the guard positions.

Texas Open Golfers Play on Soggy Turf

By The Associated Press

SAN ANTONIO, Tex., Feb.—Golf's money men slashed at Brackenridge Park's soggy three miles today in the opening round of the $10,000 Texas Open. Not even rain and cold gave par a breathing spell.

Bobby Locke and his mighty putter got the favorite's call, but the field was bulky and brilliant. And the short course enhanced the chances of the lesser lights in the 72-hole scramble.

Locke was among the almost two score players who cracked par 71 figures yesterday in a mass assault by a bulging field in the annual pro-amateur. The methodical man from South Africa chipped in with a 69. Elroy Marti, Houston, Tex., pro, had a seven-under 64 to lead the pro-amateur field.

AMERICANS WIN OLYMPIC MEDALS. Dick Button (left), 18-year-old figure skating wizard from Englewood, N. J., virtually clinched an Olympic championship yesterday and a shining gold medal to go alongside that won earlier by Mrs. Gretchen Fraser (right) the skiing housewife from Vancouver, Wash. Button run up such a sensational score in his free style tests that observers said he was assured the title. Mrs. Fraser smiles after she won second place in the women's Alpine combination skiing event at the Olympic winter games Thursday. She is the first American ever to win an Olympic skiing medal. Central, Edison Win Junior High Games

Central Junior High's basketball team took the lead in the first canto in their game against Bucyrus yesterday, and were never headed as they won, 21-16. Gene Winters was the big gun for Central with 12 points, as the Central five advanced to a tie for first place in league standing.

Central, with one game in league competition yet to be played, and Bucyrus with just one, will have a championship game to play if they both win next week. Bucyrus will meet Galion and Central will tangle with Edison.

In the other game played by the younger set, Edison walloped Galion, 31-13. Dick Mason and Clarence Reeves led Edison with seven points each, while Dixon shared seven for Galion.

College Cagers Face 28-Game Schedule Today and Tomorrow

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., Feb. 6—Ohio college basketball players, a bit leg-weary and joint-happy, faced one of those arch-flattening weekends today.

They are scheduled for 28 games tonight and tomorrow night.

Eight games are on the menu tonight, 20 Saturday night.

In preparation for this mid-season madness, Buckeye cagers trotted out for only seven contests last night—one of which found the rapid Rockets of Toledo university outlasting Dayton, 53-39. The Rockets now have knocked off 16 of 19 opponents.

Other scores last night:

Otterbein 55, Denison 41; Wilberforce State 56, Louisville (Ky.) Municipal 48; Baldwin-Wallace 57, Kent State 54; Davis-Elkins 87, Steubenville 66; Akron 80, John Carroll 66; Taylor (Ind.) 73, Cedarville 66 (overtime).

Win Not Easy

Toledo had no easy time of it during part of the second half against Dayton. The Rockets went to their dressing room with a 27-26 halftime advantage, but the Fliers hopped back to cut that to a narrow, two-point edge after the intermission.

Rocket subs came through with a rally of their own for the win. Carlo Muzi hit 14 points for Toledo, while Rip West paced Dayton with 12.

Otterbein slipped into fourth place in the Ohio Conference with an easy triumph over Denison. The Otters bounced to an early lead and were never headed. Wilbur Woods of Otterbein netted 18 points and Pete Weidemaier of Denison made 12.

B-W Over Kent State

Dick Siego and Ed Hrivnak led Baldwin-Wallace's Yellow Jackets to their Ohio Conference victory over Kent State. Each had parked 21 points. Kent made a close most of the first half but B-W grabbed a 29-25 halftime margin with a spurt. The Yellowjackets never were off after that.

Guard Cal Moore continued his 22 points to Akron's free-scoring total against John Carroll. The Zippers closed Carroll up early and held a 42-28 halftime edge.

Top scoring of the evening took place at Steubenville. There Johnny Stozich dumped in 31 solid points as his team lost. Hal Huey of the West Virginia outfit collected 26.

Ohio Wesleyan's Bishops, leaders of the Ohio Conference, meet Otterbein Saturday night without the advice of Coach Bob Strimer, who underwent an appendectomy yesterday. Sterling Greeman, Wesleyan football line coach, will substitute.

MAUMEE SURVEY PLAN REJECTED

By International News Service

DEFIANCE, Feb. 6 — Rejection of a proposal to conduct a survey of Maumee valley water problems through voluntary contributions by the 15 counties involved left unchanged today plans for convening of a conservancy court at Defiance Feb. 24.

The voluntary contribution proposal was advanced by Dale Jennings, an Allen county commissioner who opposes the proposed district. Commissioners of the affected counties met at Jennings' suggestion to discuss such a proposal but failed to pledge anywhere near the $35,000 to $76,000 estimated as needed for the survey.

Petitions for a conservancy district will be heard later this month before a conservancy court consisting of common pleas judges from the 15 counties.

Food Up 42 Per Cent Since End of Rationing

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Feb. 6 — Retail food prices in Cleveland last Dec. 15 were 42.2 per cent higher than in June, 1946, when rationing ended, the Bureau of Labor statistics said yesterday.

The Cleveland increase compares to a national rise of 42 per cent in the same period. This figure is based on a check of prices in 56 large cities.

The bureau said its latest studies show a national index of 206.9 for last December, or two per cent more than the previous record in September, 1947. The index is computed with 1935-1939 average prices figured at 100.

The Cleveland food index for last December was listed at 212.3. This, the bureau said, is 10.9 per cent higher than one years previous and 126.8 per cent up over August, 1939.
